The Missing Cannon Minion

It was a tense game on Summoner's Rift when Faker, the legendary mid laner, walked into base with a frown on his face. The Nexus crystals shimmered brightly behind him, but even their glow could not distract him from the troubling mystery at hand. The shopkeeper raised an eyebrow as Faker dropped a small pouch of gold on the counter.

"Something's wrong," Faker muttered, his voice calm but firm. "The cannon minion never arrived in bot lane this wave." His words hung in the air like a storm cloud. Around them, the faint sound of minions marching echoed from the battlefield, but one soldier was missing.

The shopkeeper chuckled softly, polishing a blade that nobody had ever seen him use. "Minions come and go, boy. Perhaps this one just fell behind."

Faker shook his head. "No. Someone took it." His eyes narrowed as he glanced toward the fountain, where five champions lounged suspiciously. Teemo stood with his arms crossed, whistling off-key; Master Yi polished his blade in quiet meditation; Katarina twirled a dagger between her fingers; Draven flexed, tossing one of his spinning axes casually into the air; and Yuumi yawned, tail flicking lazily as she floated in place.

"Each of them had the chance. Each of them had the motive," Faker said, his voice low. He placed a bundle of notes and scraps of evidence onto the counter—spores clinging to fabric, deep slash marks in stone, a dagger dug into the dirt, an axe-shaped dent in the spawn circle, and paw prints that ended mysteriously in midair. "But I don't have time to solve it. The game must go on."

He looked up, his eyes steady, his words carrying the weight of command. "That's why I need you. Someone among these five champions stole the cannon minion. The clues are here, you just need to find the truth."

Across the Rift, the missing minion's absence was already felt. Waves pushed unevenly, towers stood unpressured, and players grew restless. Somewhere in the chaos, the culprit smiled, clutching the stolen gold as if it were a trophy. The mystery of the missing cannon minion had begun.

Top: Teemo

- Alibi: "I swear, I was just on patrol, keeping the jungle safe! You know how it is, setting up my traps, checking the brush, and making sure everything stayed in place after a few mishaps. It was so annoying! Something kept triggering all my traps, and the explosions ripped my gear. I had to fix all my gear and handle all the little supplies I keep on hand for emergencies. I barely had time to take a break, but I had to because of my acid reflux. Actually, ask Master Yi! He and I took a break and made some Total Biscuits of Everlasting Will. If you follow my trail, you'll see signs I was busy all night, but I wasn't after the cannon minion! I'm doing the hard work that no one else does, keeping everything in order and making sure everyone stays safe."
- Galton Classification: WRRWUWUURR
- Ability: Noxious Trap. Teemo throws an explosive, poisonous trap using one of the mushrooms stored in his pack. If an enemy steps on the trap, it will release a poisonous cloud, slowing enemies and damaging them over time. If Teemo throws a mushroom onto another mushroom it will bounce, gaining additional range.
- Note: Consuming Total Biscuits of Everlasting Will granted from Biscuit Delivery causes them to additionally restore health immediately and grant bonus health equal to the same amount.

Jungle: Master Yi

- Alibi: "At the time? I was helping a friend tune up an air-cooling unit in one of the side lanes. Precision matters in that kind of work, so I focused on keeping the balance steady while we repaired it. I double-checked each component to ensure everything was aligned perfectly, because even a small mistake can cause problems later. Afterwards, I took a short break with a little something sweet for energy before returning to meditation and practicing my forms. I moved through the routines slowly and deliberately, concentrating on each breath and each strike. That was the entirety of my evening—calm, purposeful, and focused. There was no reason for me to meddle with minions, and any suggestion otherwise would misunderstand the path I walk."
- Galton Classification: WWWRWAUWWW
- Ability: Alpha Strike. Master Yi teleports across the battlefield with blinding speed, dealing physical damage to multiple units in his path, while simultaneously becoming untargetable. Alpha Strike can critically strike and deal bonus physical damage to monsters. Basic attacks reduce Alpha Strike's cooldown. over his inner struggle.

Mid: Katarina

- Alibi: "I was training, as usual. Hours of dagger drills will tear up your hands if you do not wrap them, and I had the bandages to prove it. Actually, just last night, I started developing a new technique. You know my blades? Well, I thought if I added a little fire, it could maybe make my skills more effective. I ended up burning myself a bit and had to get some stitches from all the cuts, too. But every second of it was worth it because perfecting my skills is all I care about. I spent the day practicing spins and strikes, testing how fast and precise I could be under pressure, and my only focus was sharpening my technique. If you think I would waste my time stealing a cannon minion, you do not know me at all, and you clearly have never seen what dedication looks like in action."
- Galton Classification: WUWRWRUU
- Ability: Death Lotus. Katarina becomes a flurry of blades, dealing massive magic damage while she channels to the 3 nearest enemy champions.

ADC: Draven

- Alibi: "Draven was putting on a show, as always. Before I went out, I spruced up the little patch of garden I keep by my training grounds because presentation matters even when no one is watching. Then I warmed up the voice and made sure the throat was in top shape for all the cheering that was bound to come. I polished my weapons until they shone in the sunlight and checked my equipment twice to ensure every detail was flawless. If any traces were left, they only prove I am a man of refinement and preparation. I do not need a cannon minion to prove my greatness because the crowd already does that for me, and their admiration is more than enough to fuel my ego. Every eye in the arena is on me and my performance, and that is the only validation a true legend requires."
- Galton Classification: WRRWRWRRUU
- Ability: Whirling Death. Draven hurls two massive axes to deal physical damage to each unit struck. Whirling Death slowly reverses direction and returns to Draven after striking an enemy champion. Draven may also activate this ability while the axes are in flight to cause it to return early. Deals less damage for each unit hit and resets when the axes reverse direction. Executes enemies who have less health than Draven's number of Adoration stacks.

Support: Yuumi

- Alibi: "I barely remember last night—nya. I was too busy dozing while Draven wandered. Every so often, I hopped down, padding along the ground or brushing against a wall that left dust clinging to my fur—nya. At one point, I even sat in some fresh cement and didn't notice until later. I mean, who would pour fresh cement in the middle of the road?? Not only that, but it's the dead of winter! What about all the ice on the roads—nya?? I probably tracked it everywhere while I was curled up half-asleep. That's what cats do, after all. I spent some time chasing a bit of yarn I found and batting at shadows on the wall—simple pleasures, really, nya. The cannon minion? I'd rather nap. If anyone is responsible for that chaos, it wasn't me, and I'll just keep curling up in warm spots and letting the humans worry about it—nya."
- Galton Classification: URRUWUWRRR
- Ability: Prowling Projectile. Yuumi fires a missile, dealing damage and slowing first target hit. It deals bonus damage and an enhanced slow if it takes at least 1.35 seconds to get to its target. While on her Best Friend, the slow is always enhanced and grants bonus On-Hit damage to her ally. While attached, the missile can be controlled with your cursor for a brief period.
